

ARMY PRESSURE WAS PROMPTED BY NIXON

Britain Warns China It Will Stand With U. S.

Believe Statement May Prompt Russia to Press for Ceasefire

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration was elated today at Britain's blunt warning to Red China that it will stand with the United States in any East-West showdown on Indochina.

Officials said the statement, made privately at the Geneva conference, may prompt Russia to pressure Red China to agree to an Indochina ceasefire to avoid going the Allies into a war from which Moscow itself could not be expected to escape.

The warning also indicated, these officials said, that the British are willing to back a united action plan in Southeast Asia if the Geneva talks fail to produce a satisfactory truce.

Britain's refusal to support the U. S. proposed Southeast Asia alliance while the conference still is in progress produced one of the most serious Anglo-American policy splits in years.

The Communists at Geneva naturally seized upon it to press for the most favorable possible terms for a ceasefire. When this strategy became clear, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is understood to have told Red China's Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai that he was overplaying his hand at the risk of U. S. military intervention and that in any showdown Britain would stand with the United States.

Comes Amid Developments

The warning and the administration's reaction were disclosed as:

1. Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.) charged in a prepared speech today that the administration has failed to practice the "bipartisanship in foreign policy" which John Foster Dulles preached before he became secretary of state.

2. Chairman Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee warned against any attempt by the United States to "go it alone" in Indochina. In a Los Angeles speech Sunday, Wiley said this country must have the "willing cooperation" of other free nations.

3. Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) told an American Legion meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla., it would "shock and astound you if you knew how near we were to active participation in the war in Indochina just a few weeks ago." He said "America actually took the leap but turned back in mid-air."

Field Meeting at Raleigh Experiment Farm Wednesday

A field meeting will be held at the Raleigh Soil Experiment field Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. The field meeting objective is to acquaint farmers with better farming practices as they are being used on the field there.

Also to be discussed are fertilizers and their use; the latest information on nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash and mixed fertilizers will be presented. The use of liquid fertilizers as sprays will also be discussed. Mixed fertilizers have been used on the Raleigh field for 15 years.

The result of various pasture mixtures with fertilizer treatments will also be shown.

The meeting should furnish an opportunity to iron out many of the conflicting questions on fertilizer use and soil management practices. It will be an opportunity for farmers to see for themselves what the facts are.

A good attendance of farmers is being urged by farm advisers of Saline, Gallatin, Hamilton, Pope, Hardin, White and Williamson counties.

It is reported that unless more interest is shown in the field meetings held at the Raleigh Soil Experiment field, the field may be moved from the county by the University of Illinois by which it is operated.

Annual Tour Held Saturday by Illinois State Historical Society

Some 130 members and visitors participated in the annual historical tour Saturday by the Illinois State Historical society, leaving the SIU campus at Carbondale at 8:30 a. m. in four buses and an equal number of automobiles for a trip to Cairo with stops en route to visit interesting sites. The two-day meeting of the state historical society began Friday.

Under the direction of John W. Allen of SIU, meeting program chairman, the group visited:

1. The Rossion-Wiley home near Makanda, partly of which has been in use for nearly 130 years.

2. The Magnolia Manor and the Rendleman Home in Cairo, fine old historic mansions of the post-Civil War Cairo days.

3. The old Civil War naval hospital behind the Ohio river levee at Mound City where 2,000 Union soldiers and sailors wounded in the Battle of Shiloh were cared for, many dying. (The building in more recent times was a cannery and now is a warehouse.)

4. The Marine Ways on the banks of the Ohio at Mound City, built in 1855, where gunboats for the Union forces in the Civil War were built and repaired and where river craft is repaired to this day.

5. The National Cemetery a mile west of Mound City where more than 6,000 veterans of five American wars lie buried, 2,759 of them being "unknown" soldiers.

6. Jonesboro and the site of the Lincoln-Douglas debate there on Sept. 15, 1858.

Two Local Men Arrested for Series of Crimes

Tommy Gene Gibbs, Charles Casteel Held
With Two Brothers

Two Saline county men are being held with two brothers from Simpson in connection with a series of crimes committed this month in Pope, Johnson and Massac counties.

The Harrisburg men are Tommy Gene Gibbs and Charles Casteel, picked up and held at Dixon, Ky., for Illinois officers, and Jess and Stanley Abner of Simpson, held by Massac county authorities on six counts of forgery which totalled $800.

State Policeman Roy A. Lane, who was an investigating officer in the case, said that the two Abner brothers and Gibbs are charged with strong-arm robbery in Pope county and that all four are charged with burglaries in Johnson counties.

Lane said the Abners and Gibbs are charged with beating John Montgomery, 74-year-old resident of near Williams Hill in Pope county, and taking $368 from him at his home on May 2.

Gibbs and Jess Abner are charged with strong-arm robbery in threatening an elderly man named Huddleston two weeks ago at his home, also near Williams Hill, in Pope county. After threatening him, the charges say, they took off his shoes, tied him up, stole $27 and left him.

Other Burglaries
Burglaries were at Vienna, to which the Abner brothers confessed, implicating Gibbs and Casteel.

On May 1, they said, the brothers and Gibbs burglarized the Vienna nursery, taking an outboard motor, typewriter and a number of pruning knives. Lane said the motor had been recovered and that the brothers admitted the typewriter was thrown into a well.

Gibbs, Casteel and the Abners, Lane said, are implicated in the May 14 burglary of the Murray tractor sales, taking four automobile batteries, two electric drills, and a set of drill bits. Part of this loot has been recovered, Lane stated.

Also on May 14 Carter's service station was burglarized, with four tires and three cartons of cigarettes taken. Lane said all four were implicated in this burglary.

Supreme Court Upholds Illinois Toll Roads Act

Victory for Gov. Stratton Gives Green Light for Plans to Build 1,000 Mile System

SPRINGFIELD (UP)—The Illinois Supreme Court today upheld the 1953 Toll Roads Act, paving the way for construction of a billion-dollar network of turnpikes across Illinois.

The decision gives Gov. William G. Stratton and his Toll Roads Commission the green light to go ahead with plans to build a 1,000-mile system of toll highways crisscrossing the state.

Stratton hopes to float a bond issue of 500 million dollars by the end of the year to get the gigantic program underway, with actual construction to start by mid-summer of 1955.

The Supreme Court opinion, handed down in a "friendly suit" which originated in Sangamon Circuit Court, was a victory for Stratton on one of the major projects in his program.

The Supreme Court overruled 10 arguments which had been brought against the Toll Roads Act in the friendly test case.

One of these objections was that a referendum on any indebtedness such as would be incurred by the Toll Roads Commission.

"It is clear from a reading of the act that the bonds are not an obligation of the state," the court said in dismissing this argument. "No Legislative Functions."

"This modern method of financing is founded basically on the proposition that the state assumes no obligation and the holder of the bond is duly notified of the fact," the court said.

The tribunal also threw out the argument that the law delegates legislative functions to the Toll Roads Commission. The opinion said the functions given the commission are "administrative and ministerial."

Another argument in the challenge of the law involved granting the right of eminent domain to the commission. The court upheld this grant, stating toll roads would be "a public use of public property for public benefit."

The Supreme Court opinion was written by Justice Ralph Maxwell, Nashville.

Disclose 'High Official' Aided Army Charges

Sen. McCarthy and Stevens Tangle
Over Testimony

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon was disclosed today to have been engaged in backstage maneuvering that led to the Army's submission of charges against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy to members of the Senate investigating subcommittee.

McCarthy and Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.) disclosed that Potter wrote the Army inquiring about its troubles with McCarthy at the prompting of an "official high in the administration." They did not identify the official.

But a source friendly to McCarthy (R-Wis.) later disclosed the official was Nixon.

McCarthy himself raised the question of the official's intervention. He said—and Potter agreed—that the official had telephoned Potter last March suggesting that he ask the Army for a report on the alleged pressures exerted by McCarthy and his aides to get favors for Pvt. G. David Schine.

Charges Administration Prompting McCarthy spoke of the "prompting" from the administration official in questioning Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens as the Army-McCarthy hearings resumed after a week's recess.

McCarthy and Stevens tangled sharply about whether Stevens told the truth in claiming the Army alone was responsible for its charges against the Wisconsin Republican and his aides.

They got into heated exchanges when McCarthy charged Stevens and Army counsel John G. Adams with "contradictory" testimony on whether higher administration officials bore some of the responsibility.

McCarthy drew some support from Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.), who said an "official high in the administration" prompted him to ask for a report in March on the Army's troubles with McCarthy. He did not name the official.

Report Started Feud
The charges, accused McCarthy, Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr of "improper means" in efforts to obtain preferential treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine, a former consultant to McCarthy's subcommittee before he was drafted last Nov. 3.

When Stevens suggested that a witness becomes weary after long sessions before the subcommittee and that Adams might have used a wrong word, McCarthy commented that the secretary had had a long vacation since the hearings had been in recess for a week. He asked if he could not tell the truth now.

"I resent that remark," Stevens flared. "I tell the truth."

Stevens suggested that Acting Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) should rule out such remarks and Mundt agreed that McCarthy's question was improper.

Stevens' testimony was given as the hearings resumed following a week's recess. He reaffirmed under oath his statement that he had issued to reporters last Wednesday, taking full responsibility for the Army's actions.

Past Cases Closely Parallel Army-McCarthy Row Issues

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The Army-McCarthy case went into its week's recess with the original fight over Pvt. G. David Schine almost forgotten. A couple of other issues had been substituted:

1. What right has Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, or any other congressman, to receive classified information from the executive departments without revealing his source?

2. What right has the President of the United States to prevent his subordinate officials in the executive departments from testifying before Congress on anything it may want to know?

Lawyers can argue on these questions for a longer period of time than even the Army-McCarthy hearings will last. But there are a few parallel cases in recent years which may throw some light on the present stalemate.

TAKE PRESIDENT EISEN-HOWER's order that Department of Defense officials shall not testify before the Senate's special investigating committee on their conferences with White House and Department of Justice officials on the Schine case.

While other Presidents have defended the independence of the executive department from encroachments by Congress, this may be the time for a real showdown on this point.

In a somewhat similar case in 1944, the executive department finally had to retreat. The case involved Jonathan Daniels, then an administrative assistant to President Roosevelt.

Harry Slattery, Rural Electrifi-cation Administrator, had revealed that Daniels, acting for the President, had demanded Slattery's resignation. Slattery refused to resign.

The Senate Agriculture Committee under chairmanship of the late Sen. Arthur W. Capper of Kansas, took up the case. It asked Daniels to come in and tell what he knew about it. Daniels refused to discuss the case before Congress.

HIS REASON WAS that as a confidential assistant to the President, it was "not in the public interest" for him to discuss it. This is the same phrase now used by President Eisenhower.

Four days later Daniels changed his mind. He wrote Senator Smith that after conference with the President, it had been decided that on this particular matter the public interest would not be affected.

Three days later Daniels testified in full. He said that he had twice asked Slattery for his resignation to end a feud within the REA organization.

This satisfied the Smith committee. They had voted to cite Daniels for contempt of Congress. That would have made him liable to fine and imprisonment. When he testified, the charge was dropped.

And Senator Smith declared that this case proved Congress had the right to protect its own business.

A demand by Agriculture Committee Counsel Carroll Beedy that Daniels produce all of President Roosevelt's files on REA was refused. Daniels said he had examined the files and they contained nothing that Congress didn't already know. They took his word for it.

COUNSEL BEEDY suggested that at some future date a congressional investigation might be blocked by putting pertinent matter into a presidential file, if such files were immune from congressional demand.

This is almost what has happened in the present Army-McCarthy case. President Eisenhower's decision not to disclose confidential records gives Senator McCarthy something of an out in refusing to reveal the source of his excerpts from the FBI report to Army intelligence on Communist activities at Fort Monmouth.

One of the points being debated here is whether the mere possession of this paper would not make the holder an accessory to the crime—under Army regulations—of having transmitted it.

Members of Congress are of course exempt from arrest during sessions of Congress, except for treason, felony and breach of the peace. But the celebrated Amerasia case of 1945 is recalled now as something of a parallel.

In this case a Federal Grand Jury indicted six persons on charges of receiving stolen public property—State Department records—and transmitting them to an unauthorized person. This was Jacob Jaffe, editor of Amerasia magazine. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2500. Emanuel Larsen, another defendant, was fined $500.

The more recent Miriam DeHaas case presents another angle. She was a Loyalty Board review examiner who was suspended by the Civil Service Commission in Sep-

Miss Myrna Gail Seats, Thomas W. Fife Married in Candlelight Service

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Fife

In a candlelight service Friday evening, May 21, at the McKinley Avenue Baptist church, Miss Myrna Gail Seats, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlon Seats, 515 West Raymond street, became the bride of Thomas W. Fife, son of Mrs. Hazel Anderson, 514 South Main street.

The Rev. W. P. Webb officiated at the double-ring ceremony, which was performed at 7 o'clock in the presence of relatives and friends.

The altar, on which the couple exchanged vows, was covered with white and beautifully decorated with lighted candles in candelabra, standards of huckleberry and emerald, emerald trees and pedestal vases of white gladioli, majestic daisies and white pom poms.

Miss Norma Cannon, organist, played a medley of wedding favorites preceding the ceremony, and accompanied the soloist, Donald Raymer, who sang, "Wonderful One" and "Because," and near the close of the service Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer." Miss Cannon, who wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds with her dress of ice blue, also played the traditional wedding marches, Wagner's Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" and Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. Her floor-length wedding gown, fashioned with off-shoulder neckline and hoop skirt, was tulle over white satin with bodice insert of lace. Her mitts were tulle, and the fingertip veil, secured by a tiara of seed pearls, was tulle and lace. She wore a pearl necklace and tiny pearl earrings, and carried on a white Bible, which was a gift of the bridegroom, a white orchid surrounded by Stephanotis.

Mrs. Denzil Simpson, matron of honor, wore a gown of Nile green with white net overskirt. The ruffled, floor-length attire of Miss Rita Lynn Davenport, bridesmaid, was also Nile green, and both carried bouquets of rainbow asters with a garland of the same flowers in their hair.

Robert Fife of Marion was his brother's best man. He and the other men in the wedding party, including the ushers, Harlon Seats, the bride's brother, and Kenneth Ozment, wore white dinner jackets and dark trousers. The bridegroom's boutonniere was of white Stephanotis, the others a carnation.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a navy lace dress with pink accessories. Her corsage was of pink Sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a light blue lace dress with white accessories, and her corsage was of white Stephanotis.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the lower rooms of the church, where arrangements of pink roses and emerald were used. The lace-covered table was centered by a three-tier wedding cake, which was encircled with pink roses, gardenias and emerald and topped with miniature bride and bridegroom. Presiding at the table, from which punch and cake were served, were the bride's great aunt, Mrs. Rev. Rankin, Mrs. Bill Morrow and Mrs. Ralph Burroughs. Other hostesses, all of whom wore white carnation corsages, were: Miss Betty Kibler, Mrs. Harry Jones, Mrs. Grover Dale Fulkerson, Mrs. Donald Raymer, Mrs. Kenneth Ozment, Mrs. Doyle Hedger and Miss Jane Cannon. Miss Norma Cannon, at the piano, played nuptial music during the reception.

Air Force C46 Is Missing with 5 Men Aboard

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—An Air Force C46 flying with five men aboard from Biggs Field at El Paso, Tex., was the object of a widespread aerial search in the hill country northwest of here today after it failed to show up at Kelly Air Force Base on schedule.

The Civil Air Patrol sent a 20-plane search mission into the air around Kerrville at dawn in search of the large, twin-engine craft which last contacted the Kelly AFB control tower at 10:52 p. m. nearly 90 minutes after it was due to arrive.

At that time, the pilot, a lieutenant colonel, said the Kelly radio was coming in loud and clear and that he expected to land in about 20 minutes. At 10:30 p. m. the pilot had requested an instrument flight

Court Acts to Dispose of More Racial Barriers

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court today followed up its decision outlawing segregation in public schools by taking steps to break down racial barriers in other fields.

Disposing of six more civil rights cases, the tribunal in three cases left standing lower court judgments which:

Require the admission of five Negroes to Hardin Junior College at Wichita Falls, Tex., which previously took in only white students;

Admit Negroes to a San Francisco public housing project intended solely for white occupancy;

Allow Negroes to use golf courses in the public parks of Houston, Tex.

Send Three Cases Back
The court sent three other cases back to lower courts in Kentucky, Louisiana and Florida with instructions for those courts to study last week's public school segregation decision "and conditions that now prevail."

Those three cases involve efforts of four Negroes to enter the University of Florida; the refusal of Louisiana State University last year to admit a Negro, and efforts by a Louisville Negro to abolish segregation in that city's public parks.

In other actions today, the court:

1. Agreed to decide whether professional boxing, like baseball, is exempt from the federal anti-trust laws.

Can Deport Aliens
2. Upheld, 7-2, the governments' power to deport aliens for past membership in the Communist Party as provided under the 1950 McCarran Internal Security Act.

3. Unanimously upheld the government's authority under the now-defunct stabilization program to refuse to give companies tax allowances on wage overpayments. The action has the effect of heading off any tax refund claims.

Minister's Son Is Accused of Murder in Robbery

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—A Baptist minister today sadly prepared a sermon about his son, a teenager accused of clubbing a man to death with a pool cue for $9.

The son, 17-year-old Luther L. Osborne, was charged with murder after the victim, Julian Vega, died as a result of the Friday night attack.

Three other youths, all 18, were also charged and a 16-year-old boy who was implicated was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Police said the five youths had been drinking beer before they ransacked Vega's cafe, taking $9 from his pockets and $18 from the cash register. Officers said one of the youths named Osborne was the one who wielded the pool cue.

Bob Cletcher Wins Stock Car Feature Race

HE WON—Hoacine Khalfi, Algerian lightweight, literally hit the St. Nicholas Arena roof in New York when given a split decision over Sandy Saddler in a 10-round, non-title match. It was the feather champion's first start since his discharge from the Army. He was a 3-to-1 favorite.

White Sox Get

George Kell and

Phil Cavarretta

CHICAGO — The White Sox' dramatic acquisition of former batting champions George Kell and Phil Cavarretta, regarded as their all-out bid for this year's pennant, was hailed today by Manager Paul Richards as "a big boost."

Richards said Kell, the 1949 American League bat king, will take over at third base in the starting lineup while Cavarretta, former Chicago Cub manager and the 1945 National League champ, will be used as a pinch-hitter.

Kell, 31, was the prize in Sunday's big swap that stunned baseball circles—the Boston Red Sox giving up the veteran third baseman in exchange for third baseman Grady Hatton and a huge bundle of cash believed to be about $100,000.

Richards indicated that the two player moves, which were designed to add batting punch for the pennant drive, may result in a big re-juggling of the Sox starting lineup.

Braves Sweep Doubleheader From Cubs; Jump From Seventh to Tie for First

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

Almost while nobody was looking, the Milwaukee Braves put on their seven league boots and jumped from seventh to a tie for first with a seven-game winning streak in that crazy mixed-up National league flag race.

It was "streak week" for the Braves, Dodgers, and Indians. Milwaukee, which was in seventh place two weeks ago and in sixth last Monday, moved into a tie for the top hot spot with Brooklyn by sweeping a doubleheader over the Cubs, 4-2 in 10 innings, and 9-3.

The Dodgers, with a modest four-game streak, their longest of the year, moved up with Milwaukee to the top by beating the Pirates, 5-4 and 6-2. Some of the lustre of their streak was taken off because all of the victories have been over the Pirates.

But the Indians, who threaten to keep on winning until Labor Day, made it 11 straight with 14-3 and 2-1 victories over Baltimore, the second in 12 innings off hard luck Bob Turley. That put Cleveland 2-1-2 games ahead of second place Chicago, which edged Detroit 4-3. Boston made it two out of three over the Yankees with Wally Post drove in five runs with a double and two run homer in Cincinnati's 12th triumph that knocked the Cardinals out of the lead. The Reds scored five times in the ninth. Ray Jablonski drove in five St. Louis runs, blasting a two-run homer, a double, and a single.

A House Big Enough

By Gudrun Olson

XIII Marion Erickson jumped off the table and took Elaine by the arm.
"Will you please help me out? Mr.
Jonas is training the songsters and they're doing fine. But I just can't seem to get any life into the dances.
I've got two left feet and so has every student in the school." She paused out of breath, but Elaine read the question glinting in her eyes.

She moved her head from side to side in a very pronounced "No."
"Think of the community, Lenny.
Everybody who has a youngster in school will come. They've a right to expect amusement when they buy a ticket. Besides," she added firmly,
"it's your duty as a teacher."

Elaine shook her head less excessively. Within five minutes she had agreed not only to do the jig, but come down to the school again this evening to help with the rehearsals.

Marion offered to drive her home, but all at once she wanted to walk the short mile, to feel under her feet a portion of the familiar path of many a girlhood hike.

She made the "No" stick this time.

Soon she was swinging along the fringes of the asphalt road that arched over the hill from the village. A short distance on the other side of the hill was the dirt road that curved into the Dahlstrom farm. When the road came into view, a big hand seemed to clutch at Elaine's throat. What would Mrs. Dahlstrom say when she discovered that Tom's wife was going to dance a jig in the high school?
Would she think Elaine would make a spectacle of herself? Astrid might play a concerto or dance a ballet, if she could, but jig? Never!

The squeal of a car obeying jammed-on brakes interrupted her gloomy thoughts. Instinctively, her head swiveled around.

Jerry Schmidt held his car door open. "Don't tell me our new substitute teacher walks home from work."

Somehow Elaine had sensed that Jerry was sensitive in spite of his habitually arrogant expression.
Therefore, rather than hurt his feelings by saying she preferred to walk the rest of the way, she slid in beside him. She smiled at him and demanded impudently,
"How did you know I'm a substitute teacher? I started only this afternoon."

He grinned at her before he pressed down on the accelerator and gave all his attention to the road. "News travels. The party line, you know."

Party line. Perhaps Mrs. Dahlstrom had told someone. Or, had Astrid come riding through the forest on her sorrel mare again this afternoon and found out from Tom?
That was more likely.

"Hey, Lenny," Jerry exclaimed.
"Why the worried brow? Were the teenage monsters too tough for you?"

Elaine moved her head from side to side, trying to shake off the thought of Tom and Astrid having another cornfield tete-a-tete. "Why, no. It's just that, like a simpleton, I promised to jig at the high school minstrel show."

"Fine. I'll come."

"It's not only that I'm scared I'm worried about how Mrs. Dahlstrom will feel on the subject."

As she gave voice to her fears, she felt a terror worse than before.
What would her straight-faced mother-in-law think?

Jerry shrugged. "Don't tell her.
Be the mystery of the minstrels."

Well, she mused, that was half a solution. "I might be that very thing," she said, smiling at his rough-hewn profile. "Now we've settled my troubles, tell me about yours."

"Astrid doesn't give me any cooperation, even with Tom off the eligible list. Can't understand that woman. She's not in love with him. Or anyone, except Astrid.
She makes no sense at all. A woman with a fine education staying at home doing nothing but flit over the back roads on that sorrel mare
... and keeping my blood pressure at a slow boil." He looked out of the corners of his eyes at her. "Maybe I'd better concentrate on you. Married women are safer, they tell me."

"Don't worry about it," she parried. "If you want Astrid, you keep after her."

At that instant the spacious Dahlstrom yard spread out before them as the car turned off the road. To Elaine it seemed absurdly like a refuge from an idiotic, but confusing situation. The car skidded to a stop.

Tom came striding toward them and she forgot every emotion except the thrill of being with him.
Longing to rush into his arms, she jumped out of the car. Then without knowing why, she hesitated, waiting for him to come to her.

Still effervescent with the joy of seeing him, she cried, "Hi Tom." The whole earth seemed to rock under his heavy footsteps as he approached.

His square jaw had the unyielding line of chiseled granite. His voice sounded a tone or two lower when he said, "Hello." The word included both of them. Something seemed to pass behind his eyes, as he glanced from Elaine to Jerry, who said, "Hi, Tom," and took out a cigaret.

For no reason at all a ridiculous feeling of having done something wrong began to worm its way through Elaine's joy. The earth stopped rocking and the section of earth designated as the Dahlstrom farm was hard and immovable under her feet.

Tom wasn't smiling. Elaine wondered if Tom was actually jealous of Jerry Schmidt. Or perhaps Tom was displeased with her for accepting the substitute teaching job at the high school.

Question Navy Officer in Death of Dancer

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP)—Police said today they will ask a naval officer to explain why four of his travelers' checks were found in the apartment of a shapely strip-tease dancer who was mysteriously stabbed to death.

The officer, Lt. Cmdr. Markle
T. Smith, 40, was brought here from Honolulu at the request of Oakland police and held in the Verba Buena brig. He refused to comment.

Four $20 travelers' checks endorsed by him were found under a rug in the slain woman's apartment, police said.

Victim of the stabbing was Lynn Williams, 28, who listed herself as an "exotic dancer." Under the stage name of Darlene, she was widely known as a Negro stripper and entertainer in San Francisco.

Police said the travelers' checks were made out to Smith in Con-nersville, Ind., on May 7, the same day he left there.

Smith checked out of a San Francisco hotel on May 14, a few hours after the time fixed for the slaying, and left for the Philippines on assignment. He had gotten as far as Honolulu two days later and was flown back here Friday.

Smith was in Oakland Smith told police he was in Oakland the night of May 13, but refused to answer any other questions until he talked to an attorney.

Mrs. Williams ran from her apartment about 5:30 a. m. May 14, clad only in a housecoat. She said a "man" had criminally assaulted and stabbed her. She was bleeding from a number of wounds. She died from loss of blood caused by two deep knife wounds and multiple cuts.

Smith is a native of Connersville, Ind. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith, live there. He is married and has at least one child. He rose through the ranks and, in World War II, was captured on Guam and held a prisoner in Japan until the end of the war.

Wife Charges 'Mr. America' With Non-Support

CHICAGO (UP)—"Mr. America" donned his swimming trunks and flexed his muscles for the girls once too often.

His wife and two of their four children turned up for his latest performance on the banks of Lake Michigan.

As a result "Mr. America," otherwise known as Gene Bohaty, was due to appear in family court today on charges of non-support.

Mrs. Bohaty, 36, said she's been looking for him since 1950 because "he's been too busy running around the country winning titles and flexing his muscles to support his children."

Last Saturday was a warm day, ideal for showing off rippling muscles against the background of blue lake water.

This, said the wife, is a pastime after the heart of Bohaty, who also holds the titles of "Mr. Illinois,"
"Mr. Heart of America" and "Mr.
Most Muscular."

She played a "hunch" and, sure enough, found Bohaty on the beach.
He was flexing his muscles and turning cartwheels in the sand. An appropriately admiring bevy of girls cheered him on.

Mrs. Bohaty didn't stay to cheer.
She called police and "Mr. America" spent the weekend in jail.
